“Education is one of the best ways to lift people up and improve a society. I view the Baltimore Scholars Program as putting up a ladder and giving a helping hand to people who are growing up in tough circumstances. It is my hope that as the Scholars complete their education, they will turn their talents to helping others in the city.”

Irvin B. Nathan, A&S ’64, undergraduate scholarship recipient, Baltimore Scholars donor, Attorney General for the District of Columbia
You can help highly motivated Baltimore City public high school students from all walks of life obtain a Johns Hopkins education, experience city-focused leadership development opportunities, and go on to make Baltimore and the world a better place. Your gift to the Baltimore Scholars Program will help Johns Hopkins offer four-year, full-tuition scholarships to Baltimore City public high school students who are accepted to Johns Hopkins. You will also help the university strengthen its ties with the city. Since the program’s inaugural class entered in 2005, over 100 Baltimore Scholars have enrolled through the program, and the average number of students applying to Johns Hopkins from Baltimore City public high schools has increased by 230%. Through Baltimore Scholars, Johns Hopkins is investing in the city’s most important resource.

MAKING A DIFFERENCE IN BALTIMORE
Your gift will help students with a wide variety of interests and backgrounds. Scholars pursue majors across the humanities, social sciences, natural sciences, and engineering. They hail from Baltimore Polytechnic Institute, Baltimore City College, Digital Harbor High School, Mergenthaler Vocational-Technical High School, Paul Laurence Dunbar High School, Western High School, Maryland Academy of Technology, and Baltimore School for the Arts. Former Scholars are already making a difference in the City of Baltimore. One alumnus founded a program to introduce students in elementary and middle schools to robot-building as a way to stimulate interest in science and engineering. Another started a nonprofit organization to provide counseling to juveniles prosecuted as adults for serious crimes. Baltimore Scholars are citizens of Baltimore, people of Hopkins, and leaders of tomorrow.

THE PRESIDENTIAL MATCH:
DOUBLE THE IMPACT OF YOUR GIFT
Any newly endowed scholarship of $100,000 or more to the Baltimore Scholars Program will automatically qualify for the Presidential Match. This unique opportunity provides funds to match the payout of the newly endowed scholarship, essentially doubling the impact of your gift. University President Ronald J. Daniels has designated five million dollars of matching funds for this endeavor, meaning $100 million in new scholarship support will qualify for this program.

SUPPORT A BALTIMORE SCHOLAR TODAY
At any level, your gift to the Baltimore Scholars Program can make an immediate impact.

$5,000 – $25,999:
Help a Scholar experience academic enrichment, leadership development, networking, and career planning opportunities

$30,000 – $99,999:
Offer annual scholarship support to a Baltimore Scholar for at least three years

$100,000 or more:
Secure a place for a Baltimore Scholar at Johns Hopkins in your name in perpetuity with an endowed scholarship

CONTACT US TODAY
Our development team is ready to guide you through a variety of giving options.

Monica Butta
Senior Associate Director, External Affairs
Krieger School of Arts & Sciences Office of External Affairs
Johns Hopkins University
3400 North Charles Street
Wyman Building Suite 500
Baltimore, Maryland 21218
410-516-8981
mbutta2@jhu.edu
rising.jhu.edu